RAF Coningsby, Lincolnshire.
New Maintenance Base for the RAF's fleet of advanced Typhoon jet aircraft

Typhoon is the RAF's newest high performance multi-role fighter for air defence and ground attack.

The Client Ministry of Defence: Royal Air Force.

The Brief To provide servicing and support facilities for the Royal Air Force's new multi-role Typhoon fighter squadron - meeting operational requirements with efficient, state-of-the-art and cost effective support systems.

The Facility A new £18 million maintenance building with two large workshops to carry out servicing of the avionics systems and aircraft structural components.

Backed by a suite of offices and conference facilities to accommodate sixty RAF staff and their associated support personnel.

The Furniture Triumph supplied the complete range of desking, seating and storage for the office, mess and maintenance areas.

The Typhoon Maintenance Base has ten aircraft maintenance tracks with integral hydraulic, pneumatic and electrical services.

The management of these tracks is undertaken from special maintenance cabins on the floor of the hangar.

These house all the requisite furniture to support IT for the aircraft's electronic systems, as well as for online maintenance systems and documentation.

Triumph additionally supplied the specialist furniture required to fit out these management cabins.
